Steering the metropolis: cross-perspectives between Guadalajara, Buenos Aires and Greater Geneva

20 Oct. 2022

Based on the Mexican, Argentinean and Swiss case studies, the sustainable development of metropolisation will be discussed during this round table, which will bring together specialists in architecture, urban planning and public policies.

Crossing disciplines and perspectives between the Americas and Europe will allow addressing the complexity of an urban process transforming the territories of the world, their resources and their inhabitants. How can we think about the articulation between institutional and functional territories? What political, technical or administrative mechanisms are needed to manage a metropolis? How can we plan the ecological transition, mobility or the economy according to the logic of metropolitan networks?
