11th International Forum on Urbanism (IFOU) Congress 2018

10 Dec. 2018

In the framework of the International conference titled "Reframing Urban Resilience Implementation: aligning sustainability and resilience" - to be held in Barcelona from 10th to 12th December 2018 - METROPOLIS in collaboration with the Urban Resilience Research Network and the Universitat Internacional de Catalunya is organizing a Panel for discussing the implementation challenges of resilience at Metropolitan scale. We invite policy makers, scholars or city practitioners to discuss which are institutional, planning or governance issue within the challenge of addressing the metropolitan scale of resilience implementation.

This panel aims at further discuss the most relevant questions emerged through the workshop, as for instance:

- How the concept of resilience could help framing across scales agreement, minimizing the spatial trade-offs (one part of the city/region benefitting from another increased exposure to threats)?
- Which could be the funding mechanisms to ensure across sectors and boundaries collaborations?

- How public-private or public-public co-management agreements could foster inter-municipality cooperation in building resilience?
  - How resilience could be adopted through strategic planning at the metropolitan levels? Is planning a proper tool for framing the enabling conditions for building resilience at the metropolitan level?
