European metropolitan areas get together for social cohesion

Wednesday 12/06/2019

Last June 5, Grand Lyon hosted the European Metropolitan Authorities (EMA) forum, an initiative led by the Metropolitan Area of Barcelona which is the space of reference for the metropolises of the region to share experiences, foster joint projects and position themselves

On its fifth edition, the yearly conference took a step further in the discussions about the roles and responsibilities of metropolitan governments, which go beyond the implementation of hard policies and infrastructures. With the theme “European inclusive metropolitan areas facing together social challenges”, the V EMA brought together different models of metropolitan governance for and by citizens.

Representatives of 26 metropolitan authorities participated in the event, which was inaugurated by the President of the Metropolis of Grand Lyon, Mr David Kimelfeld, and counted on the attendance of other five Metropolis European members (Berlin, Brussels, Greater Manchester, Madrid and Torino). Mr Kimelfeld invited the representatives of all metropolises present to sign the forum's political declaration, in order to continue their collaboration within the EMA network in the service of a Europe based on solidarity and close to the concerns of its citizens. The conference featured keynote speeches from representatives from the European Commission, the academia and research organisations. Moreover, the core of the one-day programme was structured into three roundtables inspired by the report "European Pillar of Social Rights – The role of metropolitan areas in social issues", recently launched by CIDOB. The discussions took place as follows:

1. "A metropolitan governance for a greater social and territorial cohesion" Which governance and metropolitan policies to address social inclusion issues and urban polarization? Moderated by Lia Brum, Metropolis' Content Curator & Focal Point for Latin America and Europe

Traditionally organised during the second semester of the year, the EMA conference was convened in 2019 in early June to seize the occasion of 2nd International Social Housing Festival, also hosted by Grand Lyon from June 4-8. This offered the opportunity to include in the programme of EMA a field visit to "L'Autre Soie", a former silk factory that today is the location for the European project "Home Silk Road - Housing toward empowerment", which innovatively combines solutions on affordable housing, social economy and sustainable development.

EMA is an initiative promoted by the Metropolitan Area of Barcelona that has become a consolidated forum for the leaders of Europe's major metropolitan areas. Its previous editions took place in Barcelona (2015), Torino (2016), Warsaw (2017) and Rome (2018). EMA's 6th edition will take place in October 2020 and will be hosted by the metropolitan area of Porto.
