

INTERNATIONALISATION AND METROPOLITAN SPACES (EN)

Today's world is more complex and multifaceted than any other time in its history, and this feature highlights the need to expand international cooperations between cities and countries.

The management of various problems in the way of progress and improvement of citizens' lives will not be possible except through convergence and cooperation.

International action should be interpreted not as an end itself, but a mean to empower the territory and effective mechanism to provide citizens with better living conditions

Local governments have a deep understanding of the issues that affect their communities, and their policies are often developed through a consultative process that involves community members and stakeholders.

Therefore, when developing international policy, it is essential to take into account the impact it may have on local policy objectives and ensure that it aligns with the values and priorities of the community.
