NOTE FROM THE SECRETARY GENERAL

It's been a year since we started using the hashtag #MetroGovernance to position our association as the key focal point for metropolitan governance among the ecosystem of local government networks. This coincides with the closure of the first edition of the pilot projects —launched in Montréal two years ago—, which provided us with a first-hand, practical understanding of the policies implemented at an urban and metropolitan level.

The annual meeting of our Board of Directors took place in April and, as a result, three new metropolises from Europe and Asia joined our association, which now gathers 138 members. We can also congratulate ourselves for signing an historic agreement with the city of Guangzhou, which will host the 13th World Congress in 2020, titled: "Metropolises and Cities in Transformation. Leaving no one behind".

Over the previous few months we took the first steps towards gender equality, and during this quarter we have continued to move further along this path.

Although there is still a lot of work to be done to make the world a better place, I would like to invite you to read this report and take a look at all the progress achieved by our association over the past three months. None of this would have been possible without the constant dedication of our members; and as we always say: "Metropolis does not exist without its members". I hope this report manages to demonstrate the determination, care and time we all invest in our work.

Octavi de la Varga
Metropolis Secretary General

Policy Debate on civil engagement

Montevideo, 6 April

One of the inaugural sessions of the day of statutory meetings of Metropolis and fellow local government networks, this debate brought together eleven political representatives of our Board of Directors in a table of open discussions regarding how metropolises can best develop and implement intersectional initiatives that foster inclusion and empower citizens to act in the places where they live, as well as invoke a sense of shared responsibility with local governments. The debate was co-organized by the Secretariat General, the Governing Mayor of Berlin in his role of President of Metropolis, and the Intendencia of Montevideo as the host of the 2019 Metropolis statutory meetings. Technical inputs from Metropolis' members were provided by the preliminary outcomes of the Metropolis pilot project "Sustainable Cities Collaboratory".

Pilot projects: Final workshop of “Revitalization strategies through urban projects”

Île-de-France, 1-3 April

The final workshop of the pilot project, “Revitalization strategies through urban projects”, was the occasion to discuss and work on the next milestones towards the finalization of the project. Between 2017 and 2019, the “Revitalization strategies through urban projects” pilot project gave the opportunity to urban officers from our members to work on urban revitalization strategies by collectively producing an analysis on the forms and processes for the city's transformation. They did this by looking at concrete examples of major urban projects through the analysis of 5 themes: the urban form, the urban design as a continuous process of thoughts and shaping of programs, and the urban spaces, the participation processes, the financing and regulation of the project, the governance and its influence on decision-making, the formalization, and the ownership.

Berlin, 8-10 May

The final workshop of the pilot project, "Intersectionality in metropolitan LGBTI policies", was the occasion to coordinate the launch of the "Guide to incorporate intersectionality in sexual and gender diversity policies", one of the results of the project. This pilot project aimed to produce common knowledge for the incorporation of the intersectional perspective in public policies for LGBTI persons, that is, lesbians, gays, bisexuals, trans, and intersex. Basically, it is the recognition that people are impacted by multiple inequalities. And through this understanding, a new type of discrimination is generated, different from the mere sum of those inequalities.
